Huangshan Tourist Guide

When the rolling clouds in the mountains turn to the sea, the dreamlike Huangshan Mountain brings the legendary fairyland into the human world with strangely shaped pines and grotesque rock formations, vast skies and glowing clouds.

Looking down the hill, in the dense
the Huizhou countryside and paths crisscrossed in its fields, the white walls and the blue and black tiles together form a beautiful ink painting.

The poetic and picturesque scenery is intoxicating and captivating like the air of immortality
in the mountains flowing into the earth.
Everywhere you can see is spectacular.

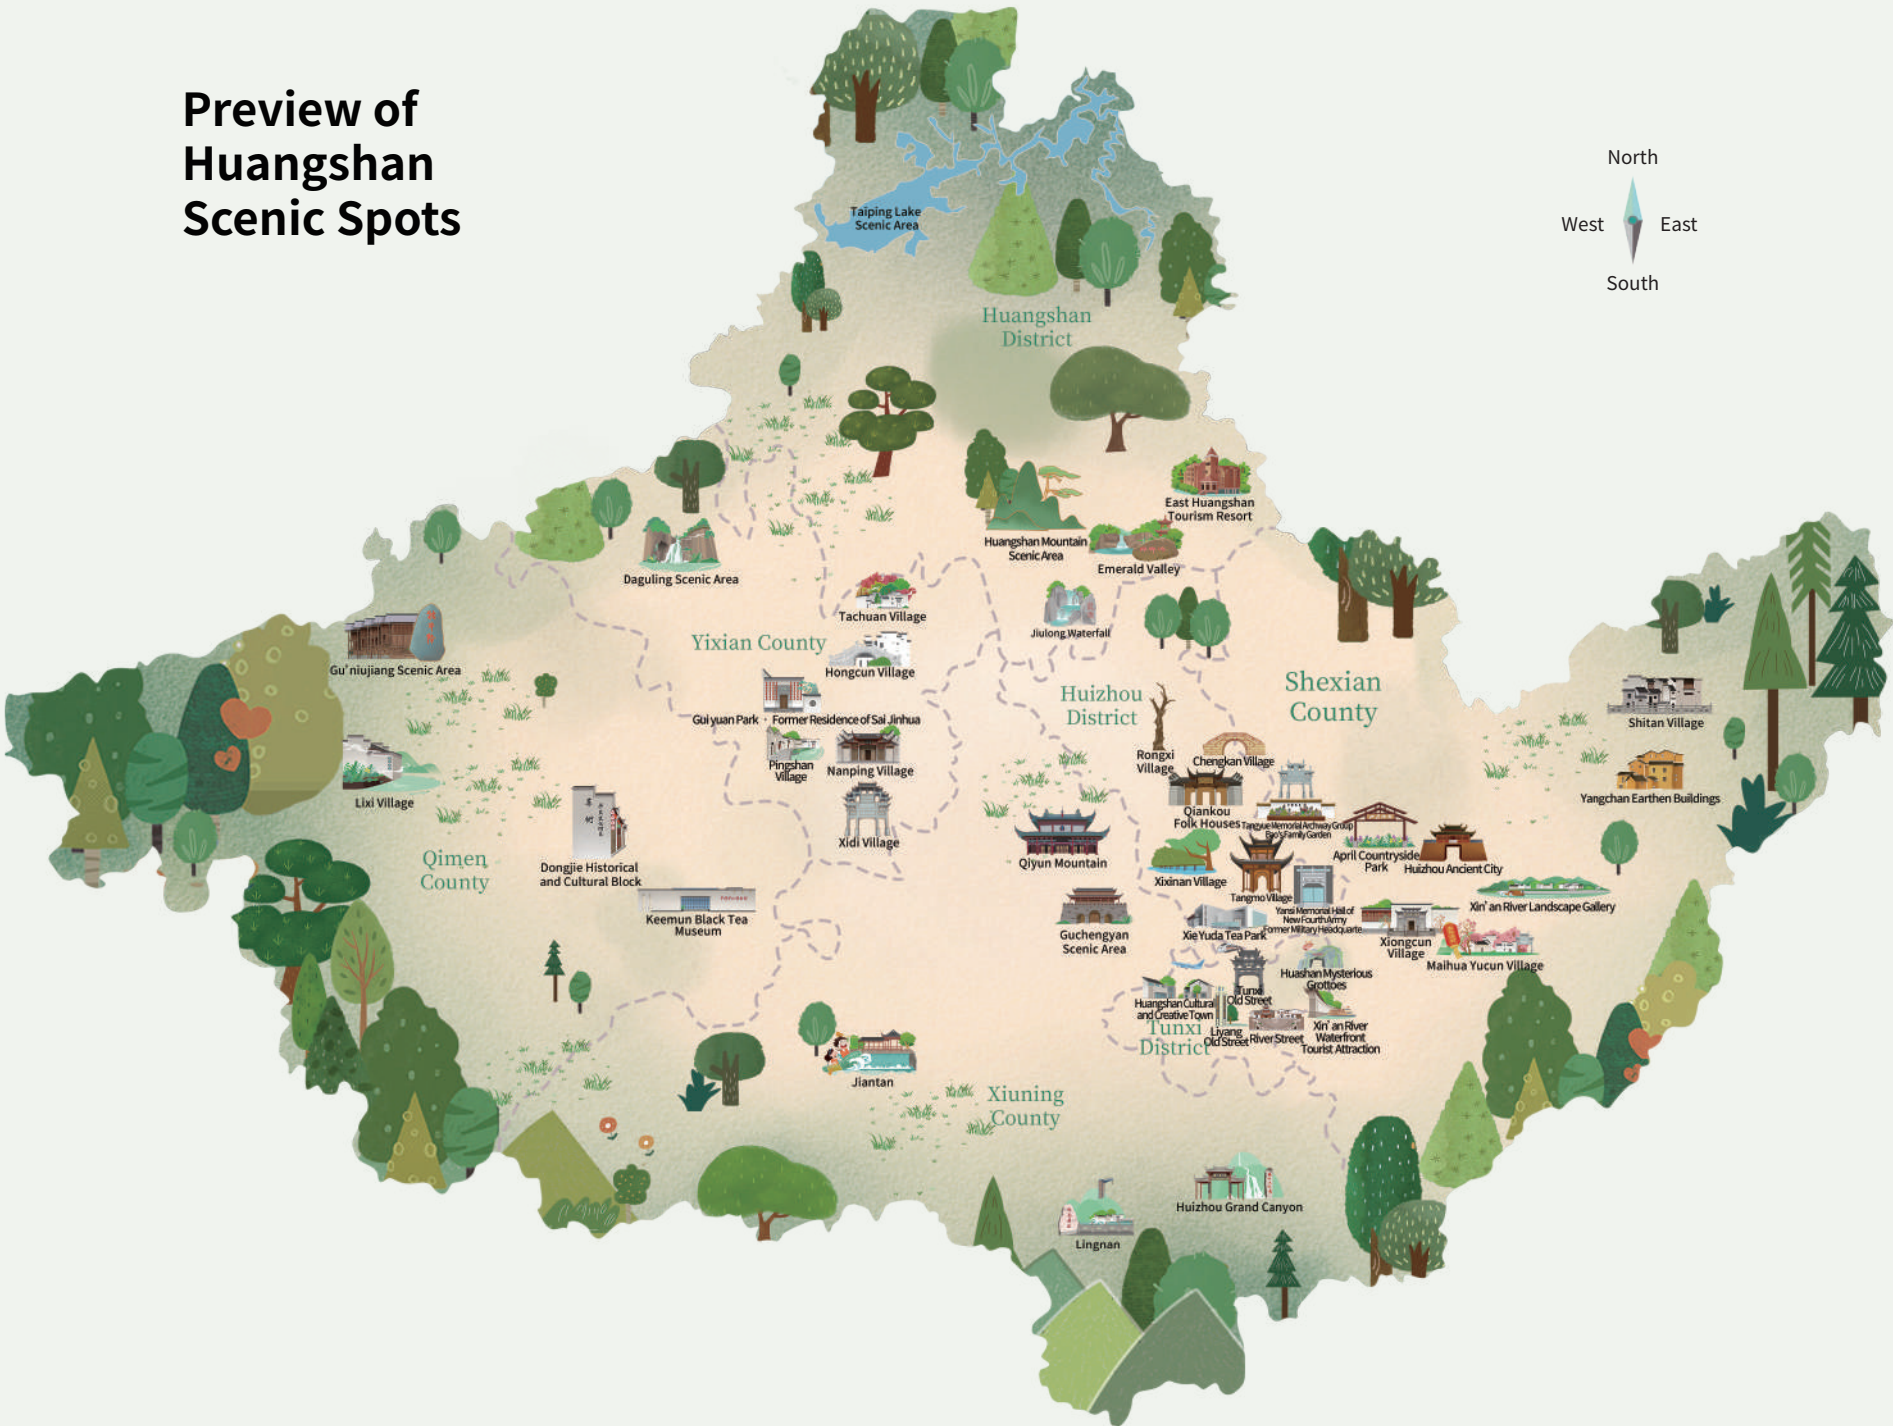

Nature and humanity are in great harmony.

Welcome to Huizhou.

Welcome to Huangshan.

■ Season and weather

Huangshan City belongs to the subtropical humid monsoon climatic zone. The four seasons are distinctive, with no scorching weather in summer and less severe low temperture in winter. The spring and autumn here are short while the summer and winter are long. There were more cloudy and rainy days, and the rainfall was mostly concentrated in April to June. Among them, Huangshan Mountain Scenic Area has a complex and changeable climate due to its high mountains and deep valleies, and the temperature fluctuates greatly on the mountain and below. Please check the weather before your journey.

Spring March - May In spring, with the average temperature of 16.3°C, there are more cloudy and rainy weather, and sometimes there is the phenomenon of "late spring coldness". Because of the large temperature difference, you need to prepare rain gear and pay attention to keep warm.	Summer June- August The average temperature in summer is 26.6°C. The temperature is high in urban areas, while it is particularly cool in mountainous areas such as Huangshan Mountain Scenic Area. In the plum rain season (mid-June - early July), the precipitation is heavy and concentrated, pay attention to thunderstorms before traveling.
Autumn September- November There are more sunny days and less rainy days in autumn, with an average temperature of 17.8°C. The climate is cool and pleasant, the temperature is low in the morning and evening, and the temperature difference between day and night is large, so it is necessary to pay attention to cold and warm.	Winter December - February The average temperature in winter is 5.7°C. In early winter, there are more sunny days and less rainy days; In midwinter, the temperature is low, and ice is easy to form on the road in the mountainous area. It is recommended to prepare rain gear and anti-cold and anti-skid equipment before traveling.

Five Wonders of Huangshan Mountain

1 Unique Pines

“Huangshan pine” is an endemic species of Huangshan Mountain, unlike other pines, most of them are not nourished in the soil, but are rooted in the rocky cliffs, standing on the cliffs, thriving by growing straight out of the rocks, and the pines are sturdy and beautiful yet strange in shapes and sizes.

Ten Famous Pines

The Guest-greeting Pine, The Guest-sending Pine, Lian Li Pine, Sea-faring Pine, Pu Tuan Pine, Guiding-guest Pine, Harp Pine, Dragon Claw Pine, Black Tiger Pine and Qilin Pine. The Guest-greeting Pine, is the symbol of Huangshan Mountain and a national treasure. It is located on the right side of the Yuping Pavilion on Huangshan Mountain and is about 1000 years old.

2 Strange Rocks

The strange rocks of Huangshan Mountain are distinguished by their strange features, and are known for their varieties, with more than 120 rocks that have been named. They appear in a variety of forms and have different landscapes due to different viewing angles, and can be described as "it's a range viewed in face and peaks viewed from the side, assuming different shapes viewed from far and wide." The most representative ones include the Feilai Stone at the West Sea Scenic Area, the Monkey Watching the Sea at the top of the Lion Peak, the Immortal Sunbathing Boots at the Paiyun Pavilion, the Dreaming Brush Producing Flowers and the Heavenly Dog Gazing at the Moon at the Beihai Scenic Area.

3 Sea of Clouds

Since ancient times, clouds have formed a sea in Huangshan Mountain, the magnificent “sea of clouds” is famous for its beauty, grace, wonder and fantasy, with peaks, rocks and pines appearing from time to time in the sea of clouds, which seems real and fantastical. It is quiet and calm sometimes, and surging waves at other times. The sea of clouds can be seen all year round, especially just clear up after rain or snow, “sea of clouds when sunglow and sunset glow” are more spectacular.

4 Hot Springs

The hot springs in Huangshan Mountain originate from under the Ziyun Peak at an altitude of 850 metres. The water is clear, sweet and drinkable, and has certain healing effects.

5 Winter Snow Scenery

The winter snow scenery on Huangshan Mountain is breathtaking. The beauty of winter snow lies in the perfect combination of snow, pines and rocks. Every winter, the peaks are all covered in snow. “When the cold wind rises overnight, all the trees bloom with white flowers”, Huangshan Mountain is covered in silver and carved in ice, just like an ink painting of the landscape.

Tips

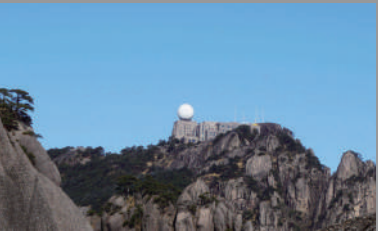

The best places to watch the sea of clouds: Yuping Pavilion, Qingliang Platform, Bai'e Peak, Paiyun Pavillion, Bright Peak, etc.
The best places to watch the winter snow: Beihai, Xihai, Tianhai, Yuping Pavilion, Songgu, Yungu, etc.
The best places to watch the sunrise: Qingliang Platform, Shuguang Pavilion, Lion Peak, Shixin Peak, Danxia Peak, Bright Peak, Aoyu Peak, Yuping Pavilion, Lotus Peak, Celestial Peak , etc.

Three Main Peaks of Huangshan Mountain

1 Celestial Peak

It stands out from all other mountains with its steep and precipitous terrain, making it the most precarious of the three major peaks in the Huangshan Mountain. Main attractions: Carp's Back, Heavenly Palace

2 Lotus Peak

With an altitude of 1864.8 metres, it is the highest peak on Huangshan Mountain and the third highest in Eastern China.

3 Bright Peak

The second highest peak of Huangshan Mountain, the top is flat and open, with a view of the East Sea, the West Sea and the Celestial Peak, Lotus Peak and Yuping Peak, which is one of the best places to see the sunrise and sunset and the sea of clouds.

Tips:

For winter tourism safety, the West Sea Grand Canyon and Lotus Peak are closed for winter maintenance from December 1 to March 31 every year, the exact time is subject to the notice of the scenic area.

Net-worthy Train

The trains are a popular tourist attraction in the West Sea Grand Canyon, and are popular among netizens on Tiktok. It has become a net-worthy spot of tourists. The West Sea Grand Canyon, also known as Baiyun Valley and Fantasy Scenic Area, is a valley of jagged rocks and deep caves, where mystery and danger stand out as the main features of the landscape.

World Cultural Heritage-XiDi, HongCun

Huangshan, known as “Yi Mountain” in ancient times, Yi County, is at the southern foot of Huangshan Mountain, hence the name of the mountain. Xidi and Hongcun are located in Yi County, which are literally “ancient villages”. It combines the profound traditional culture, the ancient and exquisite architectural culture, the ecological culture of beautiful mountains and water, and the unique Huizhou culture all in one. It is a heavenly place where visitors can see the mountains, the water and recall their nostalgia, and where many visitors “don’t want to leave, and wish to come back after leaving”. Wandering through the villages is like walking into a cultural palace.

Xidi (5A)

Xidi, a World Heritage Site and one of the best tourist villages in the world, has a history of more than 950 years, and the ancient residences in the village scatters around, with brick, wood and stone carvings as decorations, earning it the title of the “Households in Peach Blossom Spring”. Core attractions such as the Hu Wenguang Imperial Procurator’s Memorial Archway, the Dafu Di and the Jing Ai Hall, as well as unique couplets of Huizhou, will provide you with a personal experience of the family nostalgia of “passing on the family tradition of farming and reading, and the legacy of books and poetry”.

1 Hu Wenguang Imperial Procurator's Memorial Archway

It was built in the sixth year of Wanli period of the Ming dynasty to honour Hu Wenguang for his 23 years of service to the imperial court and was granted a Memorial Archway of merit in his hometown. Hu Wenguang Imperial Procurator's Memorial Archway is a symbol of Xidi, and is also known as “Xidi Memorial Archway”. The Memorial Archway is 12 metres high and nearly 10 metres wide, and is built in the form of a three-room, four-pillar, five-floor building, with a solid, finely textured “Yixianqing” marble on the mountains near Xidi, which is exquisitely carved, towering and profoundly symbolic, and is a representative work of the Hui Memorial Archway in the Ming Dynasty.

2 Jing Ai Hall

Jing Ai Hall was built in the 28th year during the Wanli period of the Ming Dynasty, and covers an area of over 1,800 square metres. It has a front doorway with flying eaves and corners, a worship hall in the middle, a large patio between the upper and lower courtyard, and two verandas on the left and right, equipped with high marble columns; the back of the hall is a pavilion building, with the downstairs serving as a hall for the ancestors' parents and the upstairs enshrining the tablets of the ancestors. It was the residence of Hu Shiheng originally, the 14th ancestor of the Mingjing Hu clan, and his three sons converted the hall into an ancestral hall to show their mutual respect and love for each other, hence the name Jing Ai Hall.

3 Zou Ma Lou

It is also called Ling Yun Pavilion, which was built in 1787 by Hu Guansan, a third-class general counselor of imperial court and one of the six richest men in Jiangnan in Xidi village, to welcome his family in-law, Cao Zhenyong the Chancellor. It has two floors, with a single-hole stone arch bridge downstairs, called Wugeng Old Bridge. Water from the Xi Stream flows gently around the building and passes through the bridge, where you can enjoy the beautiful scenery of one of the “Eight Views of Xidi”, the “Night Moon of Wugeng Bridge”.

4 Da Fu Di

Da Fu Di has two main buildings, Gui Fu Ting and Guan Jing Lou, to the left and right respectively. Gui Fu Ting was built in the 10th year of the Daoguang period of the Qing Dynasty (1830), and is a three-room, two-storey structure, named after the fragrance of the Oleaceae and the aroma of the garden. The hall is bright and tall, with two marble columns erected, which is magnificent and rare among the hundreds of ancient Ming and Qing residences in Xidi Village. It is also known as the Lady Embroidery House, and is used for the folklore event of throwing the embroidery ball and choosing a good son-in-law during major festivals.

Hongcun (5A)

Hongcun, a World Heritage Site, is an ancient village with an ox-shaped watersystem in Yi County, it is a place where each household is connected to a waterway and a clear water spring gurgles from the front door to the back of the house, with layers of buildings and courtyards interacting with the lake and the mountains, making it a scenery everywhere and a painting every step along the way, which is known as "the countryside in painting in China". The South Lake, the Moon Marsh and the Water Canal are three of the classic views of the village, where a leisurely walking tour of the village will delight your mind.

1 The Moon Marsh

It also known as the moon pond, is located in the centre of Hongcun scenic area, the water of the pond is always turquoise, calm like a mirror, and reflects the white walls and dark green tiles around, and blue sky and white clouds, which is the most outstanding place to take photos in the scenic spot, and many excellent and representative works are taken from here.

2 The South Lake

It is located at the southern end of Hongcun Scenic Area, and it was built in the Ming Dynasty. The open water is bow-shaped, and there is a stone arch bridge on the lake named the Painting Bridge. The brick and tile walls are reflected in the crystal clear water of the lake, making you feel like being in land of idyllic beauty.

3 The Water Canal

It was built during the Yongle period of the Ming Dynasty and has a total length of over 1200 metres. The Water Canal has nine curves and ten twists, and runs through halls and houses to link up the whole village. "No need to worry about the long walk home after the laundry, there is a clear spring running in front of every house", which is the best illustration of the Hongcun Water Canal.

4 South Lake Academy

It is the most complete clan academy in southern Anhui. It is located on the northern bank of South Lake, and was built in the late Ming Dynasty, originally named the "Six Houses of the Lake", and then merged into the "Yi Wen Family School" during the Qing Dynasty. It covers an area of about 6,000 square metres, and includes six parts: Zhi Dao Hall, Wen Chang Pavilion, Hui Wen Pavilion, Qi Meng Pavilion, Wang Hu Pavilion and Zhi Garden.

5 Cheng Zhi Hall

It was built in 1855 during the 5th year of the Xianfeng period of the Qing Dynasty. The whole building is a wooden structure with an area of over 3,000 square metres, and was the residence of Wang Dinggui, a renowned salt merchant in the late Qing Dynasty. There are nine patios in the hall, and more than 60 rooms of all sizes are arranged around these nine patios. Inside the hall, there are exquisite carvings in brick, wood and stone, among which the wooden carvings of Peking opera motifs, such as "Reading of Fisherman and Woodsman", "Hundred Children Celebrating the Lantern Festival" and "Tang Su Zong's Banquet", are not only exquisitely carved with clear lines, but also magnificently composed.

6 Ancient Trees at the Entrance of the Village

There are two 500-year-old trees at the entrance of Hongcun, one is a red poplar (maple poplar) and the other is a white fruit tree (gingko). The two ancient trees are the "bull's horns" of the Ox-shaped village, the "feng shui trees" of Hongcun, and a symbol of good luck. According to the custom of Hongcun, when there is a wedding in the village, the bride's palanquin should go around the red poplar tree in a big circle, signifying a hundred years of good marriage and good fortune for the newlyweds; when an elderly man dies, his coffin should be carried around the white fruit tree in a big circle, signifying the longevity of his children and grandchildren.

7 Le Xu Hall

It is also known as the Wang Clan Ancestral Hall, which was built in 1403 during the Yongle period of the Ming Dynasty. The ancestral hall comprises a gatehouse, a front courtyard, a council chamber and a hall of worship. The gatehouse of Le Xu Hall is well preserved, and the architectural style still retains the characteristics of the Ming dynasty, with simple and generous lines of the lotus rests and carvings on the moon beams. The tall central door is a clear indication of the family's prominence. In the front courtyard, there is a four-pillar, three-room, five-point walled gatehouse (also known as the five phoenix tower), which is magnificent, with the word "En Rong" written in the middle of the gatehouse, meaning prosperity for the family, and it is surrounded by exquisite brick carvings of auspicious motifs such as a double dragon playing with a ball, lions playing with a ball, etc.

Explore the origin of thousand-year Huizhou Culture—Ancient Huizhou Cultural Tourism Zone

2 Doushan Street

The street is more than 300 metres long and was built in the Ming and Qing dynasties. It is a tourist and cultural attraction with ancient houses, streets, carvings, wells and memorial archways.

3 Xu Guo Stone Memorial Archway

It was built to memory Xu Guo, a Ming dynasty scholar, and was therefore called "Xu Guo Stone Memorial Archway ", and was proclaimed a National Key Cultural Relics Protection Unit by the State Council in 1988. The stone Memorial Archway is a rare eight- pillar structure, which is also known as the "eight-legged pagoda". The inscription on the stone Memorial Archway is in the handwriting of Dong Qichang, a great calligrapher of the Ming Dynasty, and is exquisitely carved with vivid characters.

4 Tao Xingzhi Memorial Hall

It is located at the former site of Chong Yi School, where Tao Xingzhi, the great people's educator, once studied. The memorial hall is one of the first national patriotic education demonstration bases and introduces the educational philosophy and life of Mr Tao Xingzhi, as well as displaying items used by him.

5 Yuliang Dam

It is a key national cultural relics protection unit, the oldest and largest ancient barrage in the upper reaches of the Xin'an River, and was built in the late Sui and early Tang dynasties. The dam is 138 metres long, 27 metres wide at the bottom and 4 metres wide at the top, and is built entirely of solid stone, which can store water from the upper reaches and slow down the flow under the dam. It can be used for purposes such as irrigation, boating, rafting and flood control.

6 Old City Wall

The site and outline of Huizhou Town have remained largely unchanged since the Sui and Tang dynasties. In the 34th year of the Jiajing period (1555), the town was built on the eastern side of the capital to combat the Japanese invaders, and was built on a rocky outcrop. In recent years, the 1,500-metre-long outline of the city has been restored and the construction of the city walls during the Ming Dynasty has been preserved, not only for visitors to admire, but also as a physical model for the study of ancient military architecture.

It was built during the Jiajing period of the Ming Dynasty. It is one of the ancestral halls of the Qiankou Wang clan, and only the front porch, foyer and portico remain. The nine rooms across the front, the high threshold and the stone gate drums indicate the prominence of the family.

2 Fang Wentai Residence

It was built in the mid to late Ming Dynasty as a residence for wealthy merchants. The curved balustrade around the patio on the ground floor is decorated with flowers and is delicate and penetrating, and the whole balustrade is like a huge flower basket, signifying "everything will be as you wish". Behind the balustrade there is a flying chair, also known as a "beauty's chair", which was the main place of activity for young ladies in ancient times.

3 Shan Hua Pivillion

It was built during the Jiajing Xinhai period of the Ming Dynasty (1551 AD), and as the name implies, it was meant to encourage people to practice virtue. In ancient Huizhou, the people were kind, they repaired bridges and roads, built pavilions to leave their names and to help others. This is a rain shelter built by a kind man in the Ming Dynasty to make it easier for pedestrians to rest their feet.

Huangshan District

The Huangshan District has rich tourism resources, which are rare in China. The world-famous Huangshan Mountain stands to the south, while Taiping Lake, with a reputation for being the "Lover of the Huangshan Mountain", the "Emerald of the South" and the "Geneva of the East", lies to the north. It has a diverse and long-standing cultural heritage, with a variety of cultural origins, including the culture of the Yellow Emperor, the Huizhou culture, the culture of the traces of Li Bai, the culture of the educated youth, and the red culture.

Emerald Valley (4A)

Also known as "Lovers Valley", the valley is dotted with more than a hundred pools of different shapes, sizes or circles. The water in these pools is crystal clear or emerald green, and is as colourful as emeralds falling into the valley. The valley also features bamboo groves, and the water gurgles, the rocks are exquisite, and the water shines brightly, making it a delightful place to visit. In the famous Oscar-winning film "Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon", scenes such as the bamboo fights and the love scene by the pool were filmed here.

Huizhou District

Huizhou District is a place where Huizhou culture is concentrated, with many attractions such as Qiankou Folk House, Tang Mo, Chengkan and the former site of the headquarters of the New Fourth Army. It is a beautiful area with three ancient architectural wonders (ancient ancestral halls, ancient memorial archways and ancient residences), and enjoys the reputation of being an "elegant rural landscape and a corridor of ancient Huizhou-style architecture".

Yansi Memorial Hall of New Fourth Army Former Military Headquarter (4A)

It is one of the five major old sites of the New Fourth Army, a national key cultural relic protection unit, a national war memorial facility (site), a national defence education demonstration base and a national red tourism classic scenic spot. There is an old site protection area, the New Fourth Army Integrity Education Memorial Hall and a memorial exhibition area, the New Fourth Army Military History Exhibition Hall. Integrity Education Memorial Hall is based on the theme of "the soul of the iron army", with a preface hall, a main exhibition hall and the attached hall. The New Fourth Army Military History Exhibition Hall, with the theme of promoting the spirit of the Iron Army, comprises six exhibition halls, focusing on the important historical facts of the New Fourth Army's regrouping, integration, spot checking and pledging to advance to the east at Yansi.

Yansi Old Street

The green stone slabs and stepped gable portray a scene of Huizhou people's homes, and the buildings on both sides of the street still maintain the traditional spatial pattern of commercial streets and lanes of the "Shop front and Workshop back" during the late Qing Dynasty and the Republic of China, where five hundred years of time and space and countless Huizhou people's lives are solidified into a historical profile. The old streets are still full of old businesses, old houses and the purest taste of Huizhou. Ling Shan Wine Brew, Wine Cakes, Qiankou Wontons and Qiankou Rice Cakes have long been famous, and when walking along the street, you can feel a strong Huizhou vibe.

Yixian County was founded over 2200 years ago and is one of the ancient cultural counties with the longest history throughout the country. It has beautiful mountains and rivers, interdependent fields and gardens, and favorable ecology within the territory and enjoys the reputation of "Retreat away from the world, Towns in the picture". Owning Xidi and Hongcun town, two cultural heritages of the world, 6 national historic cultural villages and 44 Chinese traditional villages, Yixian County is called the "Museum of Ancient Dwellings of Ming and Qing Dynasty in China".

Guiyuan Park · Former Residence of Sai Jinhua (4A)

Guiyuan Garden adopts the traditional techniques of Huizhou garden design, featuring stacked stones and artificial hills, meandering waterways, ancient camphor trees, and a diverse collection of bamboo. Resting in the water pavilions, visitors can delight in the sight of red carp playing in the emerald waters. Strolling along the flower-lined paths, one feels like in a fantastical world, where clever couplets and rhyme of renowned literati still linger. Through Sai Jinhua's former residence, study, the exhibition hall and a vast collection of pictures gathered from both domestic and foreign sources, Guiyuan Garden brings to life the remarkable story of Sai Jinhua, the "Protect the Nation Goddess" and "Heroine of Pingkang" in the late Qing Dynasty.

Mukeng Bamboo Forest

This place, famous for its bamboo sea, is the first village of Huangshan to enter Yixian County, also known as "Dicui Valley". The valley stretches about 6 kilometers deep, surrounded by lush bamboo on all sides, like a golden bucket which gathers wealth without leaking, with excellent Feng Shui. The bamboo forests on the mountainside are secluded and silent, and it is a shooting location for the well-known movie "Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon". After the rain, the scenery of Mukeng Bamboo Forest is with homes hidden among the green bamboo and white clouds. At sunrise on a clear day, it is like Huangshan Mountain's sea of clouds, with rolling waves of green bamboo. Appreciating the moon in the valley feels like being in a heavenly realm.

Daguling Scenic Area (4A)

The scenic area is located in Meixi, Yixian County, where the Xin'an River and Qingyi River meet. The area is characterized by high mountains and narrow valleys, with peaks rising from the dense jungle. A white ribbon of water rushes between steep cliffs, splashing and spraying like pearls, and creating clouds of mist. The waterfall crashes down the mountainside in three stages, pouring into a deep pool with a thunderous roar that echoes through the valley like the beating of countless drums. Hence, it is known as Daguling.
